

About the New Title IX Regulations

Title IX is a federal law that prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in education programs and activities that receive federal financial assistance. The law also pertains to cases of sexual harassment and sexual assault. The U.S. Department of Education issued the new regulations on May 6, 2020, with the requirement that they be implemented on Aug. 14, 2020.

Following the Department of Education's publication of final regulations under Title IX, Monmouth College has updated Anti-Harassment/Discrimination Policy as of August 14, 2020.

Monmouth College will continue to provide confidential advisors, supportive measures, and resources to all parties involved in harassment and discrimination complaints.

The federal regulations will change the process of investigative procedures markedly for our students and employees, so we will be providing additional information such as FAQs and visual aids to help parties in a complaint navigate the process.

We will continue to update this page with any changes that may impact the policy or process. Please remember that our commitment to ending discrimination and harassment on our campus remains.
